WASHINGTON NEWS.

Senator Faulkner's Amendment to the Financial Bill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. Senator Faulkner to-day offered in the Senate an amendment to the pending financial bill. The fact that the amendment is looked upon in some quarters as the possible solution of the present difficulty, will, it is thought, tend to loosen the tension of the contending forces somewhat and create a feeling of friendliness that is supposed to precede reconciliation and compromise.

CATHOLIC CONGRESS.

Fourth Days' Proceedings—A Large Audience Witness the Interesting Exercises.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. An audience that filled Columbus Hall to overflowing welcomed the opening of the fourth day's proceedings of the World's Parliament of Religion. It was a striking collection of men of enlightened thought that faced the audience from the platform. Rev. Edward Everett Hale sat with Prince Sergo Wolkeusky, of Russia; Julia Ward Howe with Hiroyoki Toki, of India; Rev. Joseph Cook with Prof. Jean Reville, of Paris; Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott with Rt. Rev. Reuchi Spibata, of Calcutta. The interest centred largely upon the paper prepared by His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, upon the "Needs of Humanity Supplied by the Catholic Religion." It had been expected that the Cardinal would present the paper in person, but, owing to his ill health it was read by Bishop Keane, of the Catholic University at Washington.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott took for his subject, "Religion Essentially Characteristic of Humanity," while the paper of Julia Ward Howe dealt with "Religion as the Essential Expression of Relations between God and Man." Something concerning the origin of Shintoism was told the audience by Rev. Takayoshi Matsuhama, of Japan.

The Congresses in the other halls were well attended by members of the various denominations under whose auspices they were held. There were the United Brethren, the Advent Christians, Congregationalists, Universalists, Disciples of Christ, and the Church of the New Jerusalem.

The presentation of the tenets of the Reformed Episcopal Church took place this afternoon, in the Hall of Washington, a large audience being present.

BARBAROUS OUTLAWS.

Cold Blooded Murder of American Ranchman.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 14. A special from San Antonio, Tex., says that last Wednesday a band of Mexican outlaws visited a ranch near Del Rio, Tex., on which lived an American and his little son. They bound the ranchman and threatened to take his life if he did not tell them where he had his money concealed. He told them he had none. Then they cut off one of his arms with a hatchet. They commanded him again to reveal the whereabouts of his hidden wealth, but he could not convince them that he had none, so they cut off his other arm and cut his body in a score of places. They then split his head with a hatchet, seized the boy and cut his throat from ear to ear and rode off leaving the bodies to be devoured by vultures and coyotes. Rangers have captured two of the murderers.

ENTERED FOR THE RACE.

Thousands of People Flocking to the Line of Cherokee Strip.

The Demand for Claims will be Greater than the Supply.

Many Hundreds of People Victimized by Unscrupulous Swindlers.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Sept. 14. Twenty thousand people were, yesterday, added to the immense crowds on the line of the Cherokee strip. Supplies are running low and prices are going up. About twenty people, four or five of them women, fainted in the line during the day and several are dangerously ill from the effects of heat. A colony of several hundred negroes arrived yesterday, every one having a printed certificate granting him a farm of land upon the presentation of the certificate to the land office. These people were victimized by swindlers who travelled through Louisiana and sold them these certificates at $10 each. Other parties have arrived with tickets entitling them to a draw in the Cherokee strip land drawing for which they have paid several dollars each.

It is estimated by conservative men that by Saturday there will be on the line to take part in the race about five persons for every claim on the strip.

At Orlando, over 100 women have been lined in for two days.

Gov. Renfrew has issued a proclamation instructing the sheriff to employ deputies enough to prevent all parties going into the strip from carrying deadly weapons.

HANLAN GIVES UP ROWING.

After 22 Years of Rowing—His Idea of Professional Conduct.

A Montreal despatch says: Edward Hanlan said to-day: "You can positively state that I do not intend to do any more rowing. I have had about 22 years of it now. The treatment I received at Orillia so disgusted me that I decided to let some one else row for the honor of our country.

"I think the prospects for a new champion arising in Canada are small indeed, I am the only single scull champion of the world that America has ever produced. From what I have seen of Stanbury and Gaudaur, I don't think that either will set the world on fire.

"As long as we have such men as Stanbury and Gaudaur at the head of aquatics, boating in a professional sense will not rise to the position it held in the days of Wentworth, Chambers and myself. Stanbury recently gave an exhibition at Chicago with his trainer, and only seven persons were willing to pay 50 cents apiece to see him—the champion—row."

Forts Bombarded by Brazilian Rebels!

United States Cruiser Sails to Protect American Interests.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. Secretary Gresham has received the following cable from Minister Thompson, at Rio, at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning: The revolutionary forces bombarded the forts commanding the entrance to the harbor, also the arsenal on the wharf in the centre of the city. A few shells were fired into the city and a woman was killed in her residence. Commercial telegrams have again been forbidden. The Charleston has not yet arrived. It is now believed the Charleston went direct to Montevideo without touching at any Brazilian port.

BIOTOUS ITALIANS.

Twenty-Six of the Rioters Pursued and Captured.

A Pittsburg, Pa., despatch, of Monday, to the Philadelphia Press, says: Deadlog, a mining station fourteen miles from this city, on the Pittsburg, Charliers & Youghiogheny railroad, was the scene during last night until daylight of the worst riot in this section since the Homestead affair.

One hundred and fifty striking Italian miners took possession of the hamlet and created terror from sunset until morning. They were armed with shotguns, revolvers and pieces of iron, and a bloody battle was averted only by the cool, hard work on the part of the Deadling Brothers, who own the mine.

The firm decided last week to get rid of all the foreigners and to employ native miners. Notices were posted on Saturday to the effect that the Italians would be paid in full if they would give up their tools. The notice caused a sensation among the Italians, and it had not been up more than an hour until they had decided to fight for work. They conducted their operations secretly, and by last night every man was armed.

At eight o'clock word was received at the company's store that the Italians had lined up at the mines and were preparing to march to the store. William Deadling, a member of the firm, hurriedly arranged, to defend the company's property. Summoning six men upon whom he could depend to stand by the firm, he put them in the store and furnished a Winchester rifle for each one. An hour later the Italians arrived and opened fire. All the windows in the front of the store were broken, but none of the men inside were hurt.

Deadling had his men behind a barricade of oil barrels in front of the building and then ordered the men to return the fire of the rioters. About 300 shots were exchanged, but the mob centered upon finding that the company's men were very much in earnest. If any of the Italians were hurt they were carried for by their companions, as no one was left on the field. The resistance made at the store did not discourage the Italians, for they continued to march on the roads until four o'clock this morning.

During the night they went to the house of one of the company's employes, a man named Flacker, and shot through the window. Not content with this, a mob was passing a house in which a number of Italians boarded, a second story window was opened and three shots were fired at him but none of them took effect.

At 4 o'clock, or as soon as they could see, the men who were besieged made a charge out of the store across the little bridge over a small creek, and the Italians, after firing several parting shots were finally routed. There were 150 of them and they were headed into three parties. They made an effort to come together as the men rushed upon them, but the determined stand made by the Deadlings and their lieutenants won the day and the Italians fled.

One of the Deadling brothers went to Mansfield, five miles below, and swore out warrants before Squire McCready for the arrest of thirty of the Italians for riot and disorderly conduct. A posse returned with nine and three of the ringleaders were captured at their homes. After a chase of two or three miles, twenty others were captured and marched back to the company store. Others were captured till there were twenty-six in the office, which adjoins the store. These were heavily guarded and later, in irons, marched to Mansfield.

During the siege there was intense fear among the women of the village.

A 21-KNOT RATE.

The Columbia Makes That Run Despite Unfavorable Conditions.

[Philadelphia Press Sept. 13.]

As recorded by an adjusted patent log, the United States cruiser Columbia, in a short run up the Delaware Bay yesterday, reached a maximum speed of 21.3 knots an hour. Her required speed is 21 knots. While out on this trip the Columbia gave a good account of herself under all sorts of conditions, and her builders feel entirely satisfied that she will prove herself to be all that is expected of her on her official trial.

After the trial run, which was really not intended for a speed trial, the Columbia continued on up the river, taking advantage of the high tide to get over the Deep Baker shoals, and reached her dock about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, her course all the way being heralded by the screeching whistles of river craft and the answering wails of harbor sirens.

The chief difficulty experienced by the cruiser was a very limited sea outside the breakwater, which prevented her from running the measured course as intended, and in the short run she did make up the lost time by not contending against the very serious disadvantage of extremely shallow water, as the soundings recorded only fourteen fathoms, whereas the average depth of water on the official course over the New England course is sixty fathoms. Fourteen fathoms is equivalent to eighty-four feet, and as the draught of the vessel is nearly twenty-three feet, she had altogether too little water under her to hope to make her best speed. It is estimated that the very serious disadvantage, or extremely shallow water, as the soundings recorded only fourteen fathoms, whereas the average depth of water on the official course over the New England course is sixty fathoms. Fourteen fathoms is equivalent to eighty-four feet, and as the draught of the vessel is nearly twenty-three feet, she had altogether too little water under her to hope to make her best speed. It is estimated that the very serious disadvantage, or retarding friction in excess of what it would be in deep water, made a difference of nearly a knot an hour in her speed.

Her Full Powers Not Tested.

On this, the only fast run attempted, the blowers were not much more than half turned on—that is, she did not run under full forced draught, and only 15,000 horse power was generated. The screws were only made to turn at the rate of 120 to 122 revolutions per minute. The engines are required to be able to generate a maximum power of 21,600 horse power, with 126 revolutions of the screws per minute. It is most confidently expected that the Columbia's engines will develop more than 21,000 horse power, so that experts believe that the boat cannot fail to wipe out all other records when she makes her official run under full forced draught in sixty fathoms of water, and when her engines have swinging away with the power of 21,000 to 22,000 horses and the screws are revolving 120 times or more per minute.

The New York on her preliminary trial did not reach the maximum revolution per minute required, which was also 120, but on the official run the indicators never showed less than 130 and they generally struck round the figures 135 and 138, and while the engines of the New York did not develop the maximum horse power required on the preliminary trial, they exceeded it by about 1,000 horse power on the official run.

From the imperfect data the builders were able to obtain on this trip they are unable and unwilling to make any calculations as to what the vessel will do on the final trial, but naval men who were on board, and who did not feel restricted in expressing their opinion of the ship and of the possibilities in her, say that they were convinced by the way the vessel behaved throughout, and in view of the figures as above represented, that she is certain to excel her contract speed by not less than a full knot, with half a chance and under especially favorable conditions that she will run one and a quarter to one and a half knots ahead of her contract speed.

After reaching the Breakwater on Friday morning the ship was taken outside for a short run, as detailed in a telegram to the Press on Sunday. This was merely for the purpose of testing her speed, but to get the machinery limbered up and to give the crew a chance to get accustomed to their stations. Another run was made on Saturday for the same purpose, and the engines were then speeded for a distance of about ten miles under natural draught, making from 117 to 120 revolutions per minute. The result of this run was excellent, the average speed being 19¾ knots per hour, and the maximum being slightly more.

On Sunday the ship rested and it was intended to make a final run under forced draught Monday morning and come home, but when they got out to sea they found it impossible to make the trial. There was a strong east wind blowing which ploughed up the water so that the big vessel pitched about like a toy.

When it was seen to be impracticable to go on with a trial that day the ship returned to the Breakwater. Yesterday morning she went out again and as soon as she got well away from the land, she encountered just such conditions as those of Monday. Edwin S. Cramp, superintending engineer, who had charge of the trial trip, decided to turn back and bring the ship home as he has already been out six days and might continue to have the same kind of seas for another week.

An Opportunity Offers.

It was on the way back that he saw an opportunity to make a short speed and everything was in readiness for it, he told Captain Sargeant to let her out. The forced draught was only turned on for about fifteen minutes and as the soundings showed that they were approaching the shoals the draught was shut off and she kept on up toward home at a moderate speed.

From the builders' point of view they accomplished about all they wanted to, namely, the boat showed that she could make 21 knots an hour without any trouble, and the crew had a chance to learn how to handle her, the last being the really important purpose of the trip, as a great deal depends on the proper handling of the ship when she is running for a big premium, and they regard it as of comparative little consequence whether they run her up to her highest speed or not.

This trial also very thoroughly tested the bearings of the machinery and proved them to be all properly adjusted, and it showed that the steering gear was perfect. Members of the firm say that the Columbia answered to her helm beautifully, which is important, for English naval experts have declared that the Columbia could have had more rudder area to advantage. Her performance in a rough sea has demonstrated that she has all the rudder area that she needs and, furthermore, that her bow is properly shaped to make her ride well in a seaway, which is another point on which the English were doubtful.

The Cramps regret that the weather was not favorable for a long run; if for no other reason than to make a fair test of the value of the triple screw system. Such experience as she had is regarded as valueless so far as demonstrating the desirability of the extra screw is concerned. There will not, likely, be any further trial of the ship before she starts out on her official trip. Preparations will be begun at once and it is expected that the official run will be made in one month from now.

The Dunlell Lumber Company has been organized at Portland for the purpose of buying, selling and dealing in lumber in the United States and foreign countries, with $10,000 capital stock, of which $1,000 is paid in. The officers are: President, C. E. Dunlell, of New York; Treasurer, W. S. Dunlell, of Boston. Certificate approved Sept. 12, 1893.

First Lieutenant Thomas J. Hogan has been elected Captain of the Montgomery Guards at Portland; Second Lieutenant Thomas P. McGillicuddy First Lieutenant, and H. E. Fishbrook Second Lieutenant.

About seventy-five men are working, day and night, at Portland, on the repair of the Munjoy reservoir. They expect to finish the job in six weeks. At night they work by electric lights.

Rev. Dr. Burrage, of Portland, says the Baptist church organized at Kittery in 1682, was soon after transferred to South Carolina, where it became the First Baptist church in Charleston, and the first of all the Baptist churches in the South. Its pastor was William Screven. When he came to Kittery is not known. He is first mentioned in a land conveyance dated Nov. 15, 1672. July 23, 1691, he married Bridget Cutts, daughter of Robert Cutts, one of three brothers so prominent among the early settlers at the mouth of the Piscataqua. Paymaster Joseph Foster of the U. S. Navy calls attention to the fact that James Russell Lowell was a descendant of the Robert Cutts who was the father of Mrs. Screven.

John Cannon, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Skowhegan, was struck with paralysis Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock and died at seven evening. He had been staying at the cottage on the shore of Hayden Lake, Madison, and had just completed picking apples and getting them started for shipment when he was stricken down, on the right side, falling completely dead. He was taken to his cottage on the arrival of physicians and, was conveyed to his home, he gradually failed and finally away apparently without pain. Deceased was the father of Mrs. Hiram Hilton of Skowhegan, and had resided many years. He was seventy-seven years of age.

Whig and Courier.

BY BOUTELLE BROTHERS.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle Brothers, and communications intended for publication should be addressed: "Editor of Whig and Courier."

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER, 15, 1893.

Democratic Partisanship.

When President Cleveland called Congress together in special session, the Democratic organs in the country that are opposed to the financial ideas of the party, knowing the danger to be apprehended from the clearly defined record of the majority, and realizing the futility of looking for the repeal of the silver purchasing act without the hearty co-operation of the Republican minority, set up the cry of patriotism. It was urged that Congress had assembled for a specific purpose and that all partisan considerations should be ignored in order that the country might secure the demanded "relief."

So far as the Republicans were concerned the "appeal" was wholly unnecessary. Notwithstanding the fact that the Democrats had been absolutely dishonest in the assignment of the cause of the business depression, which was attributed to the silver law for purely partisan reasons, the Republicans accepted the situation and although they were not responsible for the legislation of this Congress they saved the repeal bill from defeat in the House. A good deal has been said concerning the fact that a majority of the Democrats voted for repeal when all other resources had been exhausted, but the plain record of the House shows that said body had it been left to the Democratic votes would have re-enacted the old Bland law instead of passing the repeal bill. The Republicans with a patriotic disregard for all party advantage saved the day in a Democratic House by a practically solid vote against the Bland bill for which a Democratic majority of nine was recorded on this the test vote of the contest. In the Senate the overwhelming majority of the Republicans stand ready to vote for the repeal bill when the Democratic majority in control of that as well as all other branches of the government secure to allow a vote to be taken.

This is Republicanism which in every stage of the country's progress since the grand old party was organized has stood for patriotism. Now how is it with the Democrats? Without waiting even for the regular session, while the repeal of the silver purchasing act is still pending in the Senate where the Democrats themselves admit that its only hope of success rests with the Republican minority, and in entire disregard of the previous protestations concerning the "one great patriotic purpose" for which the extra session was called, the Democrats in the House are to-day threatening an immediate attack upon the Federal Election laws, the sole object of which is a dishonest partisan advantage at the polls.

It is proposed to wipe out every vestige of federal supervision in Congressional elections, to the end that Democratic rascality may have full and complete swing in Democratic States where majorities are manufactured by the heelers, with no thought of the wishes of the people as declared through their ballots. This proposed move is in obedience to the joint demand of the Solid South and Tammany. Honest elections are the abomination of the Southern bourbons and the Tammany heelers, hence they join in the demand for the overthrow of the safeguards that stand between them and their desired end, namely, the opportunity for the complete destruction of popular elections. They know that the free trade and wild-cat currency schemes of the Democratic party have destroyed the chances of the election of another Democratic Congress, if the people are permitted to exercise the right of suffrage under the protection of the law that places a restriction on the work of their manipulators, and they propose to avail themselves of the present opportunities to carry out their cherished scheme to wipe the hated laws from the statute books.

Having substituted Democratic hard times for Republican prosperity, the plan now is to prevent the expected popular rebuke at the polls by opening the doors for unlimited Democratic rascality in the elections next year. This is true Democracy at the very time the leaders are begging the Republicans to lay aside all partisanship and save the country from the financial dangers menaced by reason of Democratic control. This is also another object lesson for the people.

More Facts for the Free Traders.

The wage-earners entered their protest against the proposed tariff changes contemplated by the Democratic Ways and Means Committee, when a delegation of fifteen intelligent workingmen appeared to present their case, the delegation representing fifty thousand hands employed in the textile industries. Now the manufacturers have taken a part in the hearings and in their memorial furnish the free traders with more facts of an important nature. The Philadelphia Manufacturers' Club was represented by several gentlemen. The first speaker was Secretary Clark who impressed upon the committee the fact that the organization which he spoke for represented hundreds of millions of capital invested in various industries, the employers of tens of thousands of workmen, who were the support of millions more. He spoke in a general way of the woolen industry, but left it for the practical manufacturers, present to deal with details and technicalities, which the latter did with great effectiveness. As citing one instance of distress which came directly under his personal notice Mr. Clark said that there were 1,000 idle workmen in his own village of Conshohocken.

The memorial he read recited the fact that the Board of Directors of the club believed that there were strong reasons why no radical change, should be made in the tariff law. In so far as the commercial depression had affected the manufacturing establishments, the club in its memorial said that it was due to the apprehension entertained by manufacturers and their customers that there would be a fulfillment of the threat of radical changes in the duties upon imported materials. "Manufacturers," the memorial says, "are afraid to operate their mills; merchants are afraid to buy. The extent of the depression cannot be fully estimated from the reports of the daily press. It is far more general and severe than is indicated by any statistics that can be prepared. It may be doubled if more than one manufacturing establishment in a hundred is at this moment working with the same number of persons the same number of hours a week as were employed in September, 1892. Idle men and women swarm in the streets of the towns in which these industries are planted, and while employers are helpless in the presence of difficulties which threaten many of them with ruin, the unfortunate laborers, cut off from opportunity to earn their bread, observe the approach of winter with dread of the hunger and cold from which they must suffer, unless relief shall come to them in the shape of revival of industrial operations.

"We express the opinion that this relief may be afforded instantly by an authoritative assurance that your committee will not assail the tariff law in such a manner as to expose manufacturers to unequal competition from Europeans working with lower wage scales. The pretext upon which such changes have heretofore been urged are now shown to be insufficient to warrant severe reduction of the protective duties. It is known to you that the tariff law of 1890 did not make a general increase of the custom duties. The commodities upon which the duties were not changed at all far outnumber those upon which the duties were increased, and so large and so important were the reductions, and the complete removal of the duties, that it is fair to believe that the benefit to the people from these changes much more than compensated for any injury that could have been inflicted under any circumstance, by the few cases in which the duties were increased.

"But we question if any respectable evidence can be produced in support of the theory that the masses of consumers have suffered hurt of any kind from the higher duties imposed by a few of the schedules of the existing law. It would be difficult to name any commodity in general use which has not fallen in price—and the decline has often been very great—since this act went into operation. Wool, for example, is much lower now than it was in 1890, or than it was even so recently as one year ago; and that which is true of this one article concerning which it was declared that the higher duties constituted a grievous tax upon the clothing of the people, is true of nearly all other important articles that may be classed among the necessaries of life. A careful collation of statistics would probably show that the whole range of prices on September 1, 1893, was much below that which prevailed in September, 1892.

"That the tariff law now in operation has not obstructed foreign trade, that it has not diminished the business of importers or excluded the people from the privilege of buying wares of European origin; that it has not built a Chinese wall around the country or prohibited domestic manufacturers to compete the restraining influences of foreign competition, is susceptible of proof. The value of imports has steadily increased under the law, so that the dutiable imports, which amounted to $268,891,633 for the fiscal year 1892, were swollen to $321,841,115 for the fiscal year 1893. The imports of woolen fabrics rose from $35,265,587 to $38,048,401 in the same period, although the domestic woolen manufacture was unusually active and prosperous, as is demonstrated by the growth of the imports of wool from 143,070,652 pounds in 1892 to 168,173,330 pounds in 1893. In like manner the imports of iron and steel, under this law, which has been denounced as exclusive and unjust, rose from $62,420,747 to $81,530,734; while the imports of cotton fabrics increased from $29,323,841 in 1892 to $33,660,293 in 1893. It is difficult to draw any other conclusion from these figures than that the existing law, while permitting American manufacturers to continue their business with a fair measure of security, has compelled European seeking this market to reduce their prices and to bear a share of the burden of duties for the advantage alike of the public treasury, the American consumer and domestic industry.

Hate American Manufacturers.

A New York window glass importer appeared before the Ways and Means Committee Wednesday, to advocate the repeal of the duty on this glass. He very frankly declared that he did not care for the American manufacturer, in fact that he hated him and would like to see him forced out of the business, as he, the importer, desired to do his business unhampered. This statement is typical of the free traders. They all hate the American manufacturers and would be delighted to see them go to the wall; but all of them are not so outspoken as this importer. These committee hearings are very instructive, more so in fact than the free trade members of the committee relish.

Sensitive Democrats.

The Brooklyn Standard Union says: There is a Democratic newspaper chatter because Gov. McKinley is talking about the tariff. The Democracy do not like to hear these times McKinley's talk about the tariff. Their feelings are lacerated; They have an inner agony, and their muscles are fluttering with fear. Well! the Democrats have derived a lesson or two from the state of the country since they grasped, through fraud and folly, the responsibility. The first is, that people who make changes ought to know what to do. A change in the business relations between the Government and millions of citizens should not be threatened in the air and in a fog, but as distinct as a rocky coast line, so that business men may know how to guide their interests. The promise of a change, without definition of what the change may be, is a destructive menace. The Democratic President and Congress do not know what tariff reform is. They are fooling away time to find out. They want to waste the summer. They dare not squarely repeal the McKinley law, but they want to defeat McKinley by the same combination of false pretenses by which they elected Cleveland—by election that was one of the vilest frauds ever played upon mankind.

The Aroostook Republican says: We call the attention of our readers, this week, to Representative Boutelle's speech which will be found on our first page. The Fourth District is honored in having for its representative in Congress a man of Mr. Boutelle's great and acknowledged ability. He was a fearless defender of the Union during the dark days of the civil war, and he still does yeoman service for his country in defending the best interests of the American people against the assaults of numerous enemies. In upholding the banner of protection Mr. Boutelle is doing as good service as he did when his sword was unsheathed in his country's defence. He is one of Maine's honored sons whose many triumphs have won him a national reputation. The people of the Fourth District are justly proud of their able and distinguished representative.

STATE BOARD OF TRADE.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers at Belfast.

BELFAST, Sept. 14. The annual meeting of the State Board of Trade, was attended by delegates from eight boards. Hon. Henry Lord, of Bangor, was re-elected President; M. N. Rich, of Portland, Secretary, and G. N. Weymouth, of Biddeford, Treasurer. Papers were read by E. B. Winslow, of Portland, on "How can Maine so improve her principal markets as to supply her home trade?" by John L. Crosby, of Bangor, on "How can the currency held in Maine be kept in circulation in the State?" an address by Col. I. S. Bange, of Waterville, on "What lessons has the World's Fair for business men in Maine?" and by S. W. Mathews, on Aroostook.

All were followed by general discussion. A reception and banquet were given this evening in the Crosby Inn. To-morrow excursions will occur down the bay and to Northport.

NAVAHOE THE WINNER.

The Regatta Committee Decides in her Favor.

LONDON, Sept. 14. The regatta committee of the Royal Yacht Squadron to which was referred the protest of Mr. Lloyd Phelps Carroll, of the yacht Navahoe, against the decision of the judges awarding the Brenton's Reef cup to the Prince of Wales' yacht Britannia and declaring her the victor in Wednesday's race by two and a half-seconds, decided today that the Navahoe had won the cup. The dispute has had no effect upon the relations between Mr. Carroll and the Royal Yacht Squadron.

As soon as the decision of the committee was made known the Navahoe, which is lying at anchor in Cowes Roads, hoisted the winning flag. Yesterday the Britannia flew the emblem all day. The question of the winner of the Brenton's Reef cup having been decided, the race for the Cape May cup, which it had been announced would not be sailed until next week, will take place to-morrow. The course will be the same as that sailed over for the Brenton's Reef cup.

Mr. Carroll to-day stated that his reasons for protesting were that the mark boat was found in a position at the finish different from that it held at the start. Mr. Carroll claimed that the race was at the starting line, not at the mark boat, which was out of position, and which the Britannia passed fifty-seven seconds before the Navahoe.

The committee admitted that the race should have ended at the starting line, but the yachts were not expected to return so soon and the mark boat had not returned to its proper place in time.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Mr. Daniel Gives Vent to His Pent-up Feelings.

Republicans Break a Quorum in the House.

A Quorum Finally Appeared on Call of House.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. In the Senate to-day after the offering of Mr. Faulkner's amendment to the repeal bill; proposing the coinage of 500,000,000 ounces of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 the repeal bill was taken up and Mr. Daniel, Democrat, of Virginia, addressed the Senate in opposition to it.

Mr. Daniels spoke in opposition to the repeal bill. He was often asked why he opposed the repeal of the Sherman law now after having opposed its passage in 1890. His answer was this: "Was there a man who, having patched a coat, would throw it away in dead of winter before he had got a new one?" He was not in favor of the repeal bill; neither was he in favor of going bareless, shoeless, barefooted and, naked out into the winter storm.

The Bland-Allison act, a Democratic measure, had been repealed by the Sherman law, but the repeal of the Sherman law would not restore the Bland-Allison law. He was told the Democratic platform said "repeal of the Sherman law." So he did, but it also said repeal of the McKinley law. But would the Senators repeal the tariff law and leave the treasury without revenue?

He did not doubt that the repeal of the Sherman law would have some beneficial effects, in many directions. Commerce would revive, but much in the same manner that the line of weary and hungry soldiers would revive on a long march when they heard the discoursing of a patriotic air. When the music ceased they would realize that they were still far off from rest and food.

Mr. Daniels said that if the declaration in the Voorhees substitute were changed into a legislative provision, he would vote for it; and the Sherman act could be repealed without another hour of debate. He went on to show the interest which England had in destroying silver as money. He said he had supported the President loyally in three campaigns and expected in many days of battle yet to bear his colors and to defend his cause.

He should not pay him the tribute of a courtier and flatterer who would say: "Behold a brave and honest man who has convictions," but the world show him that an American Senator also had his convictions and was brave and honest enough to be true to them. He prayed the American Senators to deal with this great and world-wide question in a great way, and to fulfill the great hopes with which the American people returned the Democrats to power. (Loud and continued applause.)

Close and respectful attention was paid to Mr. Daniel's speech. Senators gathered around Mr. Daniel and presented their compliments. Mr. Teller suggested that the Senate would not care to listen to any other speech, after the very remarkable one just made. Mr. Voorhees coincided in this and the Senate, after an executive session, adjourned.

House.

The struggle over the pending election bill was begun in the House with the opening of the session. The Republicans filibustered to prevent the reception of the report from the Committee on the Election of President and Vice President in favor of the Tucker bill. On Mr. Burrows' motion to dispense with the call of the committees for reports the Republicans refused from voting. Only three, not being a quorum. The vote resulted, yeas 4, nays 169. A call of the House was ordered.

During the discussion of the federal election bill the call of the House disclosed the presence of 221 members, and Mr. Tucker sent to the clerk's desk a resolution having in view orders to the sergeant-at-arms to secure the return of absentees, but before it could be read Mr. Reed slowly arose in the centre aisle and drawled out a motion to adjourn. On division the vote stood 40 to 89. The Speaker was about to declare the motion lost when Mr. Reed demanded the yeas and nays and they were ordered.

The motion to adjourn was lost, yeas 47, nays 145. The Tucker resolution was then read. It revokes all leaves of absence except those granted on account of sickness and directs the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph for all absent members. The previous question having been ordered a half hour of debate was held, in which Mr. Grosvenor spoke in deprecation of partisan debate.

Never in the history of the nation, he said, had there been such a demand for cool, deliberate, wise, non-partisanship as existed to-day. Mr. McMillan, of Tennessee, said that the Democratic party had been elected to the House with certain duties to perform and the man who believed that he would not discharge those duties was mistaken. Republicans could do their worst. This federal election bill would be repealed, if not at this session, at the next. After a few remarks the Tucker resolution was adopted and the House adjourned.

RATHER COOL

In the Face of Great Prosperity Caused by McKinley Bill.

NEWARK, O., Sept. 14. The following is an abstract of the speech delivered here this afternoon by Hon. Lawrence Neal, Democratic candidate for Governor, on the occasion of the opening of the Democratic State campaign. Mr. Neal said:

"We are now reaping the bitter harvest of Republican legislation. The Sherman silver law and the McKinley tariff laws underlie the feeling of distrust and want of confidence which at this time pervade financial circles.

"These two acts alone are responsible for the prevailing stagnation in business and trade, the closing of our mines and factories and the general depression in agriculture.

"The greatest foe to prosperity of the people is McKinleyism. So long as the federal system of protective taxation continues we can have no general and permanent prosperity in this country.

"To regain such property we must apply the axe to the root of the evil with earnestness and vigor and forever destroy the McKinley method of taxation.

"The claim of Gov. McKinley that the Tariff Tax

is paid by the foreigner is utterly fallacious.

"He must admit that the foreigner pays no part of the $1,000,000,000 that goes every year as bounty to the home manufacturer. He is not rash enough to make any such claim, and yet he could make it with as much reason, and force as the one he does make that the tax on the imported goods is paid by the foreign manufacturer or merchant.

"The true principles of taxation would impose the highest duties upon articles of luxury and the lowest possible duties upon the necessaries of life, but the McKinley act reverses this principle and adopts the contrary one. The alleged protection to American labor by such legislation is just as much fiction and fraud as is the miserable pretext that our tariff taxes are paid by foreigners for those goods we buy.

"For the welfare of the American laborer steady employment is not second in importance to high wages. Good wages and continuous employment are each essential to the prosperity of labor, but we look in vain for such employment to labor, even in the protected industries under the McKinley system of taxation.

"The independence of labor is destroyed by such legislation. The tyrannical will of capital becomes supreme and it restricts and limits the employment of labor, both as to terms and time. Reductions in wages, strikes and lockouts, become the order of the day. Enforced idleness results and you know the rest."

A BIG SALE.

Amoskeag Mills Product Sale Largely Attended.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14. The sale of the product of the Amoskeag mill at the auction rooms of Wilmerding, Nevins & Mitchell, in White street, this morning was well attended. All the principal buyers of the country were present, and among the houses represented was that of Jordan, Marsh & Co., of Boston. The net result of the sale will reach about $1,500,000 to $1,600,000 in money value.

MR. GRAVES' REMAINS

Arrived at West Thompson, Ct.

PUTNAM, Ct., Sept. 14. The body of Dr. T. Thatcher Graves arrived at West Thompson to-night and was placed in the family tomb. Arrangements for the burying have been completed and the funeral will take place to-morrow.

THE PROMISED LAND.

Thousands Still Arriving to Enter the Reservation.

People Dying of Prostration and Starvation.

Crowd Getting Unruly and Trouble is Feared.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Sept. 14. Thousands upon thousands of people are still arriving daily to enter the promised land and the situation is getting serious all along the line. At the registration booths to-day but little headway was made and to-night the lines are longer than ever. To-night 500 disgusted boomers left for their homes. Two men died to-day of prostration.

One old negro who came from Georgia perished from hunger and thirst.

At Stillwater the crowd is getting unruly and trouble is feared. A score of people are dangerously sick and one man died.

Fires which started in the Pawnee reservation yesterday have swept over a large section of the country, burning grass and destroying improvements the Indians made in their allotments. A number of people are missing at Pawnee and it is feared some have perished in the fires.

The whole eastern half of the strip is on fire to-night and hundreds of thousands of tons of hay are being consumed. With all the grass burned off the land and no water in the streams, the settlers will suffer horribly.

At Hennessy 5000 people are in line. Typhoid fever has broken out among the people, because of impure water and forty persons are dangerously sick.

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS BROKEN

Remarkable Wheeling at the Springfield Track.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 14. The second day of the great bicycle tournament was even more successful than the first. There were fully ten thousand people present and two world's records were broken. Tyler made a half mile in the second heat of the handicap in 1.00 2-5, beating his own record of 1.01 2-5 made at Hartford Sept. 6, and Sanger won the two mile handicap in 4.31 2-5, beating Johnson's record of 4.47 2-5, made at Pittsfield, June 24.

The great race of the day, the mile international record, was won by H. C. Tyler after the most exciting bicycle contest ever seen on the track. While musicians pretty race for place with the leaders and pushed Sanger closely on the home stretch, where the race seemed to be between the latter and Zimmerman. The two came down the stretch almost side by side with Sanger, a few feet ahead, until about a rod from the tape, when Tyler made a magnificent spurt and finished first.

In the half mile open

Zimmerman, Crossed the Tape Ahead of Windle by a wheel. Melnlee, with pace makers, covered 25 miles and fifty yards in 50 minutes, 02½ seconds, breaking the world's hour record of 25 miles, 500 yards.

The 2.25 class mile race was declared off with no run-over, as the time limit 2.25, was not reached by 6 3-5 seconds.

One mile, 2.35 class, Rhoades 1st; Hugh Robson 2nd. Time 2.13.

Half mile, 1.10 class, E. C. Bald 1st; G. M. Wells 2nd. Time 1.03 2-5.

Half mile open, Zimmerman 1st, Windle 2d, Baker 3d. Time, 1.08 1-5.

Two miles, 5.10 class, O. S. Strandt 1st, M. F. Dirnger 2d. Time, 5.02 3-5.

Mile Springfield international record, first prize, $300 diamond with diamond studded watch charm, $200; second, $100 diamond; third, $100 diamond; fourth, $75 diamond; fifth, $50 diamond. H. C. Tyler 1st; W. C. Sanger 2d, A. A. Zimmerman 3d, W. W. Windle 4th, J. P. Bliss 5th. Time 2.14 2-5.

Mile, 2.10 class, E. C. Bald, 1st; G. M. Wells 2d. Time 2.10 3-5.

Half mile handicap, final heat, H. C. Tyler (scratch) 1st; M. F. Dirnberger (10 yards) 2d. Time 1.00 2-5.

Two mile handicap, W. C. Sanger, (scratch) 1st; W. W. Windle (scratch) 2d; J. P. Bliss (30 yards) 3d. Time 4.31 2-5.

Mile consolation, W. LeMesurier 1st; C. P. Newton 2d. Time 2.21 1-5.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE

Opens the Fall Term Under Favorable Auspices.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 14. The fall term at Dartmouth College opened to-day. The year will be memorable in the history of the institution, being the first under President Tucker's administration and one in which important changes that have been made will first go into effect. The reaction of the incoming freshman class, now going on, shows that it will be the largest in the history of the college, being one hundred and twenty-five strong.

THE BRAZILIAN REVOLT.

Insurgents' Squadron Said to Have Bombarded a Town.

The Rebels Capture the Government Boat Algoas.

Over Half of the Naval Officers Joined the Rebels.

BUENOS AYRES, Sept. 14. Only fragmentary news of the Brazilian revolt was received here to-day. President Peixoto still controls the telegraph lines. The insurgents' squadron is reported to have bombarded a town near Rio Janeiro, but which one it is impossible to ascertain.

The insurgents captured the government gunboat Algoas, which lay in the harbor, and surrendered without firing a shot. The forts at the entrance of the harbor fired on the insurgent fleet, but without effect. Of 480 officers in the Brazilian navy 200 have joined the insurgents.

MYSTIC RACES.

Bayard Wilkes Captures 2.13 Race—Big Crowd Thursday.

BOSTON, Sept. 14. There was a big crowd at Mystic Park and it appeared to realize that it was witnessing some good racing, although the favorite, Bayard Wilkes, was beaten out in the second heat.

The favorites took the honors in the other races, but the 2.23 class was unfinished after four heats, Thetis and Grover Cleveland each taking two heats. The 2.21 class, trotting, purse $1000, was won by Geo. Wilkes. Best time, 2.17¾.

The 2.13 class, pacing, purse $1000, was won by Bayard Wilkes. Best time, 2.12½.

FASTEST HEAT EVER TROTTED

Great Record Made at Chicago on Thursday.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. The fastest heat ever trotted in a race was won at Washington Park to-day by Allx from the greatest field of horses that ever met. Four of the fastest heats ever trotted in a race also went on record in the Columbian Exposition stakes, free-for-all, and the event went over until to-morrow unfinished. Allx's time was 2.07¾, the world's race record, displacing Martha Wilkes and her 2.08¾.

Ten thousand people were in attendance until 6.30, when it became too dark to continue. The summaries:

The Breeders' futurity stakes, 3 years old, value $1,850, was won by Dancourt. Best time 2.18¼.

The 2.18 class, pacing, purse $1,500, was won by Atlantic King. Best time 2.11¼.

Columbian Exposition stakes, free-for-all trotting, purse $25,000, (unfinished) Hulda and Allx took two heats apiece. Best time 2.07¾.

YELLOW FEVER

NEEDS MORE STEAMERS.

North German Lloyd Company to Increase Its Fleet.

A New York despatch says: Gustav H. Schwab, manager of the New York office of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, was a passenger on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, which arrived from Bremen to-day. Mr. Schwab went over to Germany six weeks ago to have a conference with the directors of the company about increasing the service between Bremen and this port.

It was found that the company needed more steamships to handle the increasing passenger and freight traffic. The directors have decided to build two more big steamships for the American service, to carry both passengers and freight. The company has also contracted for six other new steamships, two for the China and Australia service, having a tonnage of 6,500 each, two of 5,800 tons each for South America and two of 1,950 tons each for Hull and other English ports. The new vessels for the American service will be of 9,000 tons. The company has undertaken the lengthening by 51 feet of the two small steamships Bayern and Soehsen.

Damaged in Eggemoggin Reach.

The new steel three-masted yacht Intrepid, designed by Beaver Webb for Lloyd Phoenix, of New York, and one of the finest pleasure crafts in commission, lies high and dry on the marine railway at Bath, with her stem broken short off in two places, and the plates smashed in or rolled back in a ugly manner for about six feet between the two breaks, the lower one of which is just front of the keel.

The section of stern between the two breaks is so twisted and bent that it must be replaced by a new forging, and several new plates must go on.

The craft has steam auxiliary, and it was while entering Eggemoggin Reach, with her engines sending her along at an 18-knot gait, that she ran into the channel rocks, the buoy being there it is said, three ships length out of position.

The boat was lifted nearly clear from the water, but at high tide she came off under her own steam, and with her foresail over the mast in the bow, was taken here for repairs. Water only entered the forward compartment.

Maine National Guard.

It is reported that the struggle between the several cities and towns of Maine which wished to furnish the four new companies to be added to the second regiment, M. N. G., is ended.

The heavy coast defence artillery companies of Eastport and Calais will be changed to infantry companies and mustered into the second regiment, and new companies will be organized in Houlton and Camden to make up the required number.

There will also be four new companies added to the first regiment, and there is some rivalry as to where they will be located.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Fickett's market displayed an very handsome lot of Sandy Point ducks yesterday.

A seizure of liquor was made last evening at Edward Burke's saloon on Exchange street.

The second in the course of dances will be held at Queen City Grange Hall, Six Mile Falls, this evening.

J. A. Robinson & Son have taken Mr. W. J. Pretto in as clerk in their well known clothing establishment.

The Penobscot Machine Company has just set up a very fine triple-expansion boiler at their works for the new yacht at Barbour's yard.

Cool mornings, warm days and cool nights characterize the present weather, which is conducive to colds, and there are not a few of them.

The examination of candidates for teaching and the training class arranged to occur yesterday was adjourned to 9 o'clock this morning at the High School Building.

The union preparatory lecture, which was to have taken place this evening in the First Parish church, has been postponed on account of the absence of Rev. C. B. Cutler.

State Steamboat Inspector Horace Atwood, of Hampden, returned yesterday from Moose Pond, where, with Inspector Henry Staples Jr., of Portland, he inspected a steamer.

A number of the visiting Patriarchs Militant prolonged their stay over yesterday and had a pleasant journey about town. Bangor has many attractions for visitors and they are loth to leave.

Mr. I. D. Barton, general superintendent of the New York and New England Railroad Company, and family passed through the city yesterday morning from Bar Harbor in his private car, Kineo, on their return home.

Prof. Rathburn and Dr. Wakeham, who have been studying the habits of the mackerel on the Maine and Nova Scotia coast, and more recently the fishes of the Bay of Fundy, the river St. Croix and tributary waters, have closed their labors for the season.

The first closed car of the summer, No. 10, made its appearance on the street railway yesterday. The closed cars are being put in line order for the coming service. Even now the chilly air of the early morning and evening makes them comfortable for passengers.

Chief of Police L. W. Gilman yesterday received a telephone message from Bar Harbor stating that two Victor bicycles, one having wooden wheels, were stolen there Wednesday night, and requesting the police to be on the lookout. The request will be cheerfully complied with.

The steamer Sedgwick went to Bucksport yesterday to assist in hauling up the steamer Henry Morrison and to-day goes to Camden, from which port she is to take an excursion to Green's Landing Saturday. With relation to the time of 3 hours and 10 minutes made by her from here to Islesboro Wednesday, it should be stated that it was made against a strong flood tide.

Barney Kelley sent twenty-five men to Moosehead Lake yesterday afternoon to work for Bradstreet Bros., of South Gardiner. The members of the firm expect to have the Seboomook and Moosehead log sluice completed about the middle of October. A crew of 75 men is engaged in the work, and its cost will be about $14,000. No logs are likely to be brought down the Kennebec this year.

Hon. A. E. Buck and wife, of Atlanta, Ga., have been visiting relatives in this State, where they formerly lived. Col. Buck was United States marshal for the northern district of Georgia under President Harrison's administration, but has now given way to a Democratic successor. At one time he represented an Alabama district in Congress. His wife is a daughter of Judge H. K. Baker, of Hallowell.

The Bangor WEEKLY COURIER is issued to-day. It is the largest and best weekly paper in Eastern Maine and is appreciated by its many readers. It contains the latest Associated Press telegrams, editorials on the leading questions of the day, Bangor and Brewer locals, stock, marine and market reports, letters from correspondents, etc., etc. Copies in wrappers for mailing may be obtained at the counting room.

The private hatchery at Moosehead lake will be put in good condition for use and the fish commissioners will furnish land-locked salmon and trout spawn and provide a man to take charge of the establishment. Land-locked salmon once thrived in Moosehead, but in late years they have almost disappeared. It is now proposed to stock the lake abundantly with these fine game fish, and also to put in plenty of smelts for food.

Director A. F. Sager, of the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday made arrangements for a game of basket ball to occur at the gymnasium, to-morrow evening. This game was played here somewhat last year and proved quite exciting to the spectators. It gives the players excellent exercise and is a game that is played indoors with good results. There may be a series of games between teams composed of Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium players.

One hundred and thirty-five from this city and vicinity went on the excursion to Good Will Home, East Fairfield, yesterday, leaving on the 8.20 and 8.10 A. M. trains. An excellent opportunity was given during the day to inspect the institution, which is doing such a good work for boys, and the visit was one of much interest. The excursionists were entertained at dinner and were shown about the cottages. It was a very pleasant day's outing for the visitors. They returned on the afternoon trains.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Gathering at Etna to Listen to Several Addresses.

Quite a large number of the members of the Patrons of Husbandry from this vicinity went to Etna yesterday to attend a public meeting of the order and a goodly number came from other sections of the State. The majority went and came on the morning trains and the others took the noon trains to attend the afternoon meeting. Many also went by carriage.

The meetings were held in the grove and there were some six hundred present. In the forenoon addresses were delivered by Master Hunt, who is at the head of the State Grange, and Prof. W. E. Rogers, of the Maine State College. Both addresses were able and interesting and they were listened to with the closest and most undivided attention, by the auditors.

After a substantial and bounteous dinner had been partaken of, another meeting was held at the same place and the people had the pleasure of listening to National Master Brigham, who spoke upon the influence of the Grange for good, what it had accomplished, what it proposed to do, what its principles are, etc. Mr. Brigham is a good speaker and his ideas were received with much favor.

During both the forenoon and afternoon meetings there was singing led by the grange choir and it was a pleasing exercise of the programme heartily participated in. The weather was of the best for the out of door meetings and the conditions were well appreciated. The afternoon trains were taken on the return and those who went by carriage left after the close of the programme.

A PLEASANT SOCIAL

In Honor of Mr. A. E. Sager, the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Director.

The members of the Young Men's Christian Association had a very pleasant time socially last evening, the occasion being an opportunity of meeting Mr. A. E. Sager, the physical director.

After some time spent in an informal way about the building, singing at the piano, etc., the company adjourned to the lecture room where Mr. Seger, being gracefully introduced by President J. G. Blaker in a few well chosen words, expressed his pleasure in having his lot cast in such a pleasant city, among such pleasant people, and in having such a fine gymnasium in which to prosecute the important work of building up the bodies of young men.

He said few cities of the size of Bangor have such an equipment for their Young Men's Christian Association and urged the men to show their appreciation by being careful of the gymnasium apparatus as well as assisting the new men who come in as members.

Mr. Seger's remarks were most heartily applauded. After this came a most unique and interesting game, in which all joined. Mr. Frank E. Bragg was the fortunate guesser and was presented with the prize—a pumpkin—and Dr. D. A. Robinson made the presentation speech in his usual felicitous manner. While Mr. Bragg was taken entirely by surprise, his friends were greatly pleased at the witty and happy manner in which he replied.

After light refreshments provided and served by a few members of the auxiliary, and a jolly time about the piano, the young men took their departure, having spent an evening in a way that they would not be afraid to have their employers or mothers know about.

These members' socials are held monthly and are most popular with the young men.

MALARIA

Half of all sicknesses are caused by Malaria. The poison comes out of the ground, into the air and is breathed into the system. It is everywhere, though worse in damp or low places. Some towns have almost none and some pass a year and suffer with it. But nearly all have it sooner or later, often without knowing what it is that causes their bad feelings. Don't take Quinine or Arsenic they only help for the time and cause bad troubles and mineral poisoning. Better by far to fortify your system against Malaria with Dr Baker's Grape Cure. Your dull headache or neuralgia, or backache, or weakness or aching bones, or blues or feverishness, or chills, are symptoms. If you have one or more of these don't delay to use Dr Baker's Grape Cure. This splendid vegetable medicine does not fill the bones with mineral poisons, mercury etc. It acts gently but powerfully upon the stomach, liver and kidneys. It relieves and takes it impossible for Malaria to stay. Take it promptly and stop your bad feelings. It has cured many. It will cure you. Pleasant tasting, delicious extract of fine grapes, with curative herbs, and is different from all other medicines. Sold by DRUGGISTS. $1.00.

HISTORIC OLD RELIC

Added to the Collection of the Pennsylvania State Building

The Continental battle flag of General Nathaniel Greene presented to his command by the ladies of Charlestown Mass in 1776 after their town had been destroyed by fire by the British troops, can be seen on exhibition in the Pennsylvania State building close by the old Liberty bell The bell and this Revolutionary banner are of the foremost generals under Washington must be more than interesting to patriotic Americans and should be seen by every one visiting the Fair It is inclosed in a neat gold frame covered with glass to save it from the ravages of time and decay On the frame are printed the different battles it floated in namely Bunker Hill, Trenton, Hobkirk Courthouse, Eutaw Springs, Malvern Hill and many engagements with the Forts between Charlestown Mass and Charleston S C On the face of the flag may be plainly read the patriotic sentiments of the donors woven in different colored silk such as "Don't stop till the British have fled" "Death or liberty brave boys" "Don't give up the colors"

The flag is constructed of linen bound with blue silk, the best material accessible under the circumstances, but appreciated by the Green Mountain boys who bore it as well as if it were of the most costly fabric As there is no painting attached to the flag it is considered by the sons of Rhode Island the birthplace of General Greene It was placed with the State of Pennsylvania through the influence of William A Cunningham, of Chicago, who represents the owners It is accompanied by undisputed documents from the heirs of General Greene now living in the State of Louisiana

Acute Articular Rheumatism

Attacks of rheumatism in some of the joints are so common and often so painful and protracted that a discussion of its treatment, which recently appeared in the European edition of the Herald will be of interest to many sufferers

The treatment recommended by M Albert Robin is intended to relieve the pain, to bring back the swollen joints to a normal and healthy state, and to correct the anæmic condition of the patient created by the attack

During the period of the rheumatic pains he directs that salicylate of sodium should be given in doses of four grammes a day, according to the following formula

Syrup of orange flowers, 80 grammes.
Distilled water, 120 grammes.
Salicylate of sodium, 4 grammes

One tablespoonful every two hours

During the second period, when the painful symptoms have diminished, iodide of potash is most advantageous It should be given in increasing daily doses of 0 50 0 75 or 1 00 grammes at the meal, in water or syrup of sarsaparilla

Finally, in the third stage of the malady, when all pain has ceased and the patient needs to be strengthened and reinvigorated, iodine of iron is commonly indicated in syrupine form

HAMILTON FISH BURIED

Services at Glen Clyffe and St. Philip's Church in Garrison's Attended by Prominent Citizens

NEWBURG, N Y, Sept 11, 1893 The body of the venerable Ex Secretary of State, Hamilton Fish who died at his home, Glen Clyffe, last Thursday was buried Monday The funeral services were held at St Philip's Church of the Highlands in Garrison's, and the body was interred in the beautiful cemetery of the same name

The hour named for the funeral services was twelve o'clock, but long before that time friends of the dead statesman were arriving at the pretty little Episcopal church Among the first to be assigned seats were Mrs Ulysses S Grant Colonel Frederick D Grant and Mrs Nellie Grant Sartoris They arrived from Cranstons soon after eleven o'clock John Bigelow, ex United States Minister to France, and his daughter Miss Grace Bigelow, of Highland Falls were also given seats in the church early Colonel Oswald H Ernst Superintendent of the United States Military Academy and Major William H Spurgin of West Point, occupied the pew with the Grants The special train from New York over the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad reached Garrison's at half past eleven o'clock Those who came up on it were assigned to carriages and driven at once to the church

In the meantime brief services were held at Mr Fish's late home The Rt Rev Bishop Henry C Potter arrived on a morning train and the Rev Dr Morgan Dix reached there in time for the services at Glen Clyffe It was but little after twelve when the funeral party reached the church and entered while Bishop Potter recited the burial service of the Protestant Episcopal Church While the casket was being placed upon a bier in front of the altar the church choir sang an anthem The Rev Dr Dix recited the opening sentences after which the choir sang "Jesus Savior of My Soul" Dr Thompson then read the lesson—a part of the fifteenth chapter of I Corinthians After the invocation the choir sang "Art Thou Weary Art Thou Languid?"

When the body was taken from the church to the cemetery the following gentlemen acted as pallbearers Willis C Schoonmaker, Mr Benjamin D Silliman Samuel Stern Colonel Thomas B Ardon, John A King Seth Low, John Schuyler and Alexander Clinton Following the bearers were the members of the family They included Hamilton Fish, Cornelius Fish and Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs Sidney Webster, Mrs S W Benjamin Mrs M L Rogers, Hamilton Webster, Willis Rogers the Misses Julia Camilla and Harriet Rogers Miss Julianna Benjamin, William M Benjamin and Hamilton Benjamin At the grave the Rev Dr Thompson read the committal service and the choir sang "Nearer my God to Thee" The benediction was pronounced by Bishop Potter

Many organizations of which the late ex Secretary of State was a member were represented at the funeral by delegations These included the Society of the Cincinnati of New York State the Historical Society and the St Nicholas Society Among those who returned to New York on the special train forty-five minutes after one o'clock were Charles Edwards, Percy Iselin Francis Jones Dr L P Brindis, George W Childs Gherardi Horace Porter Osgood Welsh John W Jacobs Van Rensselaer Cruger Dr J M Chrystie William Ogden Gilbs ex Senator William H Robertson I Wolcott Jackson, Georges Bowdoin Benjamin W Groton John G Coffin Walter Palmer Paul H L Drone, Richard Winthrop Wilt J M Bailey Gouverneur Cochrane H F Osborn S D Carpenter and Gouverneur Morris Grant Wilson

Ex Governor Alonzo B Cornell, who attended the funeral went to Cranstons Monday afternoon to pay their respects to Mrs Grant returning to New York the same evening Mrs Grant was very much affected by the services in the church and at the cemetery

During the service at St Philip's Church Monday the Rev Dr Thomas read the resolutions adopted by the Vestry of the Church of which Mr Fish was long a member The congregation stood while the tributes were being read

A STRUGGLE FOR LIFE

A St. Louis Drug Clerk's Terrible Fight with Two Burglars

A Chicago despatch says Harry Warner, night clerk in the drug store of F A Holroyd, Fifteenth Street and Wabash avenue had a terrible struggle for his life early yesterday morning with two daring robbers He was shot in the mouth and then beaten on the head until the thieves left him for dead supposed dead He was found lying in a pool of blood, unconscious The cash register in the store had been rifled and an attempt had been made to rob the safe From Warner the thieves took $20

Warner was awakened by a night call and admitted two men After binding the clerk was confronted with a revolver and ordered to put his hands in a rope loop He decided that it would be as soon be shot as to be bound and gagged and he inserted only one of his hands With the other he made a drive at the robber's face knocking him over backward and he rolled down the stairs to the bottom in the basement And he fell he kept hold of the rope and it looped tightened on Warner's wrist The clerk was dragged down with him and when they landed at the bottom Warner was on top

The basement was pitch dark and for five minutes Clerk Warner struggled bravely for his life against the fiend Once Warner closed his teeth in the ear of his assailant and bit off a big piece He was getting the best of the first robber when the second came to his companion's aid and struck Warner over the head with a billy which clerk had then let fall

While he lay dazed from the blow a revolver was thrust into his mouth and discharged Fortunately the bullet struck a tooth which changed the course and it went clear through the cheek and embedded its if in the floor of the basement The two desperadoes got the best Warner into insensibility

They left him lying in that position and escaped through the door by which they entered the place Warner was discovered by a customer who entered the store shortly after the robbers escaped

Iron Hall Litigation

The Iron Hall litigation of Lidiana originated comes up this week for action by the Superior Court over which Judge Winters, since his appointment succeeding Judge Taylor who died presides

The order of Judge Taylor giving Receiver Talley $10 000 for his services for the year is expected to be approved though the local members are astonished at its size and the secret nature of its being given It bears date of July 19 when Judge Taylor was on his death bed An allowance of $15 000 was made last year to the three firms of attorneys who were interested in the case but as in the case of the $10 000 allowance no record has been made of it

The last order does not yet bear the signature of the deceased Judge and steps may be taken to prevent it from standing In an interview to-day Receiver Talley said he had applied the late set of the $721,000 in his hands to increase the principal

The amount in the receiver's hands enables the re-organized order to assert that it is solvent and not a subject of action by the courts. They say that by an order of Judge Taylor any State which did not refuse to turn over its reserves to the general receiver, but which should choose to stand by the local receiver would be cut out of a share in the division of the money in the general receiver's hands

As many of the local receivers of the country have refused to turn over the fund in their hands the money in the general receiver's hands amounts to $1 35 for every dollar of liability

THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE'S SALARY

Radicals Trying to Cut It Down in Order to Attack the Duke of Connaught

In the House of Commons, Mr James Henry Dalziel, liberal member for Kirkcaldy, moved a reduction of the vote for the salary of the Duke of Cambridge as commander-in-chief of the army The motion was made for the purpose of attacking the appointment of the Duke of Connaught to the Aldershot command

Mr Dalziel said that the appointment was an injustice to Lord Frederick Roberts commander of the Indian Army, as well as an injury to the general interests of the service He added that he had been informed that the Duke of Connaught did not live in camp and that he delegated many of his active duties to his chief of staff

Lieutenant Colonels Wards and Lockwood both retired army officers defended the appointment Mr Campbell Bannerman Secretary of State for War, said that the Duke of Connaught had been selected by the Duke of Cambridge subject to his approval As War Secretary he accepted the full responsibility for the appointment

It was now here denied that the Duke of Connaught was competent to fill the position and members ought to be proud that a son of the Queen had proved his fitness and willingness to serve his country rather than live a life of luxury This the Duke had shown at Inkerman where he remained under fire after his staff, [illegible] had been wounded by his side The War Secretary entered into details to show that the Duke of Connaught was the only senior officer available for the position Those above the Duke he said were either on the verge of superannuation or performed their present duties so well that it was inexpedient to remove them

Right Hon Edward Stanhope, conservative formerly Secretary of State for War supported the appointment

Sir Charles Dilke radical said he did not question the fitness of the Duke for the place but he opposed the appointment because he thought the position ought to be filled by an officer who was likely to command the army in time of war He did not believe that any government would approve the intrusting of the command of the army to a member of the royal family in the event of a European war

Major Frederick Rasch conservative contended that the Duke of Connaught's seniority of rank was due to unmerited promotion

After further debate Mr Dalziel's motion was rejected by a vote of 555 to 39

What the Radicals Say

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught has been appointed to the Aldershot command in succession to Sir Evelyn Wood This scandalous piece of jobbery—for the Duke has been appointed over the heads of several senior officers—led to some pertinent questions being addressed to the Secretary for War in the House of Commons Mr Robert Burnie, the member for Swansea asked on what grounds the Duke of Connaught had been appointed to the Aldershot command Mr Campbell Bannerman replied that the Duke had been selected by the Commander in Chief for the position on account of his fitness for the duties If H R H was not, the senior officer but those who were his seniors were not available Now Mr Campbell Bannerman is a clever and agreeable man but he is no statesman and his putting forward were received on the radical benches with something like angry contempt What about the Duke's seniority Mr Burnie asked Is he not disgusted dissatisfied democrats The whole business was made incomparably worse by the knowledge that at bottom all these equivocations lay the hunting fields that Lord Roberts the greatest soldier in the army had applied for the Aldershot position and had been shunted for a royal duke and that the Army Hot shows an obvious preliminary to putting the Duke of Connaught in the Duke of Cambridge's place in this perpetuating the blunder of [illegible] in the duplication of royal commander-in-chiefs Altogether a very bad job

The Evil Habit of Making Up

"No one believes a man ugly as he can't help it and fond admiration ever followed a profile as your It is absolute classic

She gave him a quick scrutinizing glance and said Do you like it, John? He nodded assent

And that was about of a mouth! he continued I have never seen its equal And those dimples too! See how they play hide and seek The imprint of angel kisses I am sure!

A demure look stole across her face but she did not speak

'Ah! the droop of your eyes dear' he went on No wonder that half the men in town are at your feet Was there ever such a face as yours?

I am glad you like the front view sir' she answered mischievously But tell me what you think of the profile

'Profile' he echoed It has been the sun and object of my life to be considered beautiful Tell me, John, if I have succeeded

'You mean master piece' he answered enthusiastically But tell me what you mean The object of your life to be beautiful I do not understand

'But you will also answered sweetly A gleam of triumph was in her eye for even he had not detected the work of science I must tell you the truth she said after a pause

That classic profile was a Roman-nize nothing And this mouth! You should have seen it John stretched half way across my face But I had it altered And those dimples—I am glad you like them Well they cost me just $200 Even the droop of the eyelid was acquired The designs were all my own

I am so glad to have pleased you' and the maid smiled as she thought of the surprise she had in store for him when he ventured to admire openly the stolen beauties of her countenance and the freely pencilled brows and the clover red coiled throat —New York Herald

Why Delaware's Boundary Is Circular

The northern boundary line of Delaware is circular because the charter given to Penn states that Penn's lands was to be bounded on the east by the Delaware river from 12 miles distant north of New Castle town until the three and forth degree of north latitude and that the southern boundary was to be a circle drawn at 12 miles distant from the town of New Castle northward and westward until the fortieth degree of north latitude and then by a straight line westward This makes a circular boundary for northern Delaware and is valuable and the facts above set forth explain a geographical curiosity that has puzzled many students —St Louis Republic

A Word For Farmers.

The great drawback on many farms to the highest use with cows is the want of good pasturage Many pastures are stocked with early grasses which have a fair amount of feed early in the season, but after the last of July begin to fail and through the hot time of the season afford but scanty feed There is but one way for the farmer to bridge this chasm of poor pasturage by adopting a partial soiling system—that is to get near the full value out of his dairy —Lewiston Journal

A Few Reasons Why the Sales of the KINEO STOVES and RANGES are Constantly Increasing.

Because the people know they are the best
Because of the merits they have, which Other Stoves have not.
Because every desirable feature to be desired is found on them.
Because quality is the true test of cheapness, and the best is the cheapest
Because they are the richest in design and ornaments of usefulness.
Because our new Coal Grate gives the best satisfaction of any patent grate manufactured.
Because less talk is required to sell them than any other Stove or Range in the market.
Because our Stoves and Ranges are more attractive than others.
